BROOKLINE WOMAN STOPS RUNAWAYS AS DRIVER FALLS

Mrs. Z. R. Forbes, wife of Brookline war registrar, who proved herself a heroine in stopping runaway horses.

Mrs. Z. R. Forbes of No. 61 Brook street, Brookline, wife of the Brookline Water Registrar, today received congratulations from her friends upon her display of courage, when she dashed into the street in front of her home and stopped a pair of horses in runaway.

Mrs. Forbes modestly states that any woman with any presence of mind would do the same thing.

"By reading the papers," she said "you would infer that one would have to be a suffragette to stop a pair of runaway horses. Not so. I realized the danger if the horses were not stopped. I acted and acted quickly."

Michael O'Rourke, driver of the horses, in some unknown manner fell from his seat. The horses became frightened and bolted. Mrs. Forbes saw them from her door and dashed to the rescue.

"D'YE know," said Mr. Dooley, "I s'pose th' greatest practical joker in th' wurruld is th' fellow over in Paris that invints th' new styles that dhrapes th' charms iv th' ladies, God bless thim. Oh, th' crool wag that he is."

Don't miss "Mr. Dooley on Dress," by F. P. Dunne, to be printed in NEXT SUNDAY'S AMERICAN. (By Special Arrangement with Hearst's Magazine.)

Six Dead, Many Injured in New York Hotel Fire

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Six men were killed and many badly hurt in a fire that destroyed the Waverly Hotel, a lodging house at No. 357 Eighth avenue, early today. Before the fire was discovered it had destroyed the stairways and cut off the escape of fifty men in the building. The majority of these were rescued by firemen, but a number leaped from the second story. Seven were hurt seriously when they jumped and were taken to the hospital.

Newton Football Players Punished

Three members of the Newton High School football team were punished today by Headmaster Adams for the part they played in last Saturday night's celebration of the victory over Somerville, during which an automobile was unlawfully appropriated.

Clifford L. Brown of No. 105 Sumner street, Newton Centre, who was fined $50 in court, was barred from taking part in the school sports for the rest of the year. William H. Wellman of No. 50 Lakewood road, Newton Highlands, and Thomas Cashman Nathan of No. 518 Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre, were reprimanded, but did not lose their places on the football team.

East Cambridge Boy Run Over and Killed

While crossing Cambridge street near the corner of Seventh, East Cambridge, today, John Callahan, five years old, was run over and killed by a team owned by the Loose-Wiles Company. Herbert Hyde, the driver, was arrested and held in $1,000 on a charge of manslaughter. The victim is the son of Robert Callahan of No. 521 Cambridge street, East Cambridge.

Plans Complete for New Wellesley Hall

Plans are complete for the new Wellesley College buildings which will replace burned College Hall. The award of the construction contracts will be made tomorrow, it is now believed. Mr. Carlson, one of the architects, says dirt will fly within a few days.

Curtis, Kansas Senator by 2,000

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 5.—With returns still incomplete the indications this afternoon were that Charles Curtis, Republican candidate for United States Senator will win by about 2,000. The Democrats do not concede this.

HARVARD IS FAVORITE AT 10-7

From present indications a crowd almost as great in the assemblage that watched Harvard and Yale struggle a year ago will be on hand when the whistle blows—that's the way all regular football games are started—at 2 o'clock.

The applications for seats took almost all the reserved sections in the Stadium horseshoe itself. Some seats in the additional wooden stand at the north end of the field are still left.

With every seat sold—as will very likely be the case—more than 40,000 will watch the gridiron giants battle. Last year's record crowd was said to number nearer 50,000, but the temporary bleachers were larger than the ones just completed.

BETTING BRISK.

The betting is beginning to be brisk, owing to the arrival of the advance guard of Princeton sympathizers in town. Where odds of two to one were asked a week ago, the popular price at present is ten to seven, with plenty of Tiger backers willing to stand by their team.

By the time the Princeton student body gets its tomorrow night betting on the big game is likely to be very nearly even, as the return of all the Orange and Black stars to the line-up has lifted the hopes of the followers of the undefeated Tigers.

The Princeton players will arrive in Boston tomorrow, the backfield men, some ten in number, coming in the morning and going to the Stadium for practice early in the afternoon. The remainder of the players will get in during the afternoon and will immediately go out to the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale, where a signal drill will be on the program.

BIG TIGER CROWD.

Several hundred Princeton students will accompany the team and by the time the game is called Saturday, every Orange, N. J., student and alumnus who could raise the necessary traveling expenses will be on hand at the Stadium rooting for the defeat of the big Crimson team.

The star of Brickley seems to have paled somewhat over around the Stadium and has been replaced by the star of Eddie Mahan. For months now we have been hearing about just what the versatile Edward could

Winthrop Girl Struck by Auto

Grace McCarney, a nine-year-old Winthrop girl, playing tag with companions on her way to school this afternoon, ran squarely in front of Fred Tewksbury's automobile and was knocked down and painfully injured. At the Metcalf Hospital it was said she would recover. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. McCarney of No. 396 Winthrop street, and Tewksbury lives on Pleasant street.

Londoners Shun Upper Floors in Fear of Zeppelins

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Upper floor rooms in some well patronized hotels are in little demand as the result of timidity felt about Zeppelins. The timorous are English as well as French and Belgians. Lately many English women have taken apartments in hotels, closing their houses because the men of the family are at the front.

According to an official of one of the largest hotels, London as a result of the war, will be a Winter resort this year, since many persons who annually go to southern Europe will remain here. The dining rooms of the hotels are filled with French and Belgians, as are the well known restaurants. Owing to the dearth of amusement in Paris, the audiences in the theatres here include a large number of Parisians.

HOLD 304,000 PRISONERS IN GERMANY

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Reliable figures just received from Berlin show that in the German detention camps there are approximately 304,000 prisoners, divided as follows: Russians, 140,000; French, 125,000; Belgians, 30,000; British, 9,000.

Doctor Rescues Drowning Man

Dr. Lincoln Davis of No. 317 Beacon street, Back Bay, this afternoon rescued John Cheefa, twenty-three, of No. 9 Salem street, from drowning. Cheefa had leaped into the Charles River basin from the Esplanade, at the foot of Berkeley street, and a woman who witnessed the act ran screaming along the walk. She attracted the attention of Dr. Davis, who plunged into the water and Cheefa to shore.

Says Germans Plan Conquest of U. S.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—"The fate of the United States also is being decided on the battlefields of Belgium and Poland. If by the impossible German triumphs, American security will cease to exist," writes Edmond Laskine, the French economist, in information. He adds:

"The Germans already have decided what name they will give the new world when they conquer. It will be known thereafter as Deutsch-America. It is also an open secret that Germany is also seeking to incite Japan against America, as well as intriguing with China and Mexico."

Japs in Honolulu Signal Cruisers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Japanese warships outside of Honolulu waiting for the German cruiser Geier have been receiving secret signals from a Japanese civilian ashore. Official reports say that an American naval officer caught the Japanese signaling and warned him not to repeat the offence.

Auto on Rampage Injures Two Men

An automobile driven by John Costa of No. 196 D street, South Boston, either skidded or got out of control at Hamilton and Bowdoin streets, Dorchester, today. John J. Scanlon was knocked down and his leg injured, while David Larrabee was knocked down and suffers da broken arm. Scanlon lives at No. 43 Topliff street and Larrabee at No. 1 Allston street.

Sleep Walker, 90, Killed by Fall

LOWELL, Nov. 5.—Felix Dayon, a man of ninety, walked in his sleep at his home at No. 57 Rock street, last night. He opened his window and dropped out. His sons found him dead on the ground three stories below this morning.

Cancel Olympic's Winter Sailings

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Winter sailings of the White Star liner Olympic were cancelled today. Members of the crew were paid off. Many of the officers and a large number of the crew have joined either the army or navy. The Olympic will probably be taken into service as a transport.

BRITISH ANNEX CYPRUS; RUSSIA ROUTS TURK NAVY

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A dispatch from Lowestoft reports that heavy cannonading was heard in the North Sea off Aldeburgh this morning. Aldeburgh is about eighty-five miles northeast of London. The long awaited sea battle between the British and German fleets may have begun.

Great Britain today annexed the island of Cyprus, according to an official announcement in London.

Cyprus has been nominally a Turkish possession, but England in recent years has controlled it through a resident commissioner. Cyprus lies south of Asia Minor in the Eastern Mediterranean and is about the size of Corsica. The island has a population of more than 250,000. It is about forty-eight miles long, and from forty to fifty miles in width.

An official report from the German general staff states that the allies' line in the Franco-Belgian battle has been pierced; that a sortie from Nieuport has been easily repulsed, and that steady progress is being made in the German attacks from Ypres to the Vosges.

Momentous sea battles are expected shortly between the British and German fleets in the North Sea, the Kaiser's war fleet having slipped out of the Kiel Canal, and in the Pacific, where a Japanese squadron of eight powerful warships is hastening to engage the German ships that defeated Admiral Cradock's British force off Chile. Another battle, of somewhat minor importance, is imminent outside Honolulu, where vessels of the allies are lying in wait for the German cruiser Geier.

The Russian Admiralty announced today that the Turkish fleet had been driven from the Black Sea and had taken refuge at its base in the Bosphorus, refusing to give battle to the Russian warships.

Warships of Great Britain and France are continuing their bombardment of the German land forces along the Belgian coast, according to today's dispatches, while Constantinople reports the bombardment of Akabah, Arabia, by a British fleet.

Reports of the loss of two German cruisers, the Yorcke and Koenigsberg, brought hope to England today that the tide of victory on the seas which thus far has been flowing in favor of Germany had begun to turn.

A dispatch from Amsterdam said that the Yorcke had struck a mine near Jade Bay, which is guarded by the great German naval station of Wilhelmshaven. The Yorcke carried a crew of 616 men, but the Amsterdam dispatch said that official advices from Berlin stated that only 382 had been saved. The Yorcke was placed in commission in 1906. Her displacement was 9,500 tons and she had a speed of 21 knots.

The Koenigsberg, which according to the London Times had been put out of action in the Indian Ocean, was a protected cruiser. She had a displacement of 3,348 tons and a speed of 23.6 knots. Her crew numbered 322. Like the cruiser Emden, the

ROCKEFELLER PLEADS IN NEW HAVEN R.R. CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—William Rockefeller, who at various times has been reported seriously ill and too weak to testify in examinations, appeared unexpectedly before Judge Foster today and pleaded not guilty to the conspiracy indictment against him and twenty other officials and former officials of the New Haven Railroad.

Bail was fixed at $5,000 and quickly furnished. Rockefeller looked to be in better health than at any time during the past few years. He declined to talk to newspaper men.

VAIL ENTERS PLEA.

Eleven more of the indicted officials were arraigned yesterday, and after pleas of not guilty, were released in $5,000 bail. The twentieth, Theodore N. Vail, head of the American Telegraph and Telephone company, who is ill at Old Point Comfort, appeared through his counsel, who was permitted to enter a plea of not guilty.

Among those who were arraigned was Henry M. McHarg of Stamford, Ct. As he was leaving the courtroom, Mr. McHarg made the comment: "The return of the indictments on morning before election just cost the administration the defeat of Padelford in Connecticut."

The first of the defendants to appear was Edward D. Robbins, law chief counsel for the New Haven. With his appearance the first move for immunity was made in behalf of the accused. Mr. Robbins pleaded not guilty with the others, but reserved the right to withdraw his plea at the end of twenty-one days and enter a plea to bar, the effect of which is to claim immunity.

TO CLAIM IMMUNITY.

It was understood that Mr. Robbins will make his claim on the strength of his appearance before the Federal grand jury which indicted former-president Mellen in the Grand Trunk merger.

It is reported several others will enter similar pleas.

With those who have now been arraigned, there remain but four indicted officials to be surrendered, namely: Charles P. Howard, James Nelson, T. DeWitt Cuyler and John L. Billard.

HERRICK IS SUSPENDED AT HARVARD

The Harvard college authorities, as well as the law, are visiting punishment upon Robert F. Herrick, Jr., son of a prominent Greater Boston family, for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Young Herrick, a member of the junior class, has been suspended from college for the remainder of the college year. Whether he will be allowed to return next Fall to resume his course will be decided by the college authorities later.

Meanwhile young Herrick is held in $200 on his appeal from a sentence of two weeks in the house of Correction, imposed by Judge Almy in Cambridge District court after Herrick had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Herrick's home is at Chestnut Hill Farms in Milton. His father, Robert F. Herrick, is a Harvard graduate and a leading Boston attorney.

A few weeks ago young Herrick and two or three Harvard companions jumped into an automobile belonging to George Wallace, son of Joseph Walker, the defeated Progressive candidate for Governor. The car was standing in front of one of the freshman dormitories. Herrick and his companions drove the car at high speed along Massachusetts avenue toward Boston in the darkness. Wallace missed his car, thought it had been stolen and reported it to the police. But the patrolmen were already in pursuit in a car they had commandeered. They overtook the borrowed car at Harvard Bridge. One of the riders jumped and, though a shot was fired, escaped in the darkness.

Herrick and one other were arrested. Young Walker, declaring that collegians had danced in the streets, was willing to drop the case, but the police were firm. Herrick and his companion were arraigned before Judge Almy. Herrick pleaded guilty to driving a car while intoxicated.

His lawyer, former Senator Harry M. Stevens, asked for leniency, saying that the college was to discipline Herrick. But Judge Almy imposed a jail sentence.

Bread Throwing at Harvard Denounced

The Harvard Crimson editorially asks the undergraduates to please not throw bread in Memorial Hall tomorrow night at dinner during the singing of the football songs. The Crimson says:

Some men measure the quality of their loyalty by the quantity of its effervescence. There are always a few who take the evening before the big games to display a childish enthusiasm by throwing bread and other more substantial missiles. If the sport were as harmless as it is childish, only personal preference would have to be consulted. But serious damage, not only to apparel, but more important, to valuable portraits has been done through mere thoughtlessness. Such ill-judged zeal should not be tolerated, even under the guise of college spirit.

MRS. DURLAND'S DEATH RECALLS TWO SUICIDES

News from New York today of the death of Mrs. Eunice Durland recalled to Bostonians the suicide of her son, Kellogg Durland, the author-traveler, who took poison in the South Station, Boston, three years ago, and the suicide a year later of Frank Basil Tracy, editor-in-chief of the Boston Transcript, through ill-health and despondency at Durland's death.

Kellogg Durland married Gertrude Forgville, a writer, in 1903. They separated. On the night of November 18, 1911, Durland went to the South station, entered a compartment in the New York express where his wife was and killed himself before her eyes.

On November 26, 1913, nearly two years to a day after Durland's suicide, came the story of the suicide of Clifford Tracy of the Transcript a year before. Mr. Tracy had been in the Butler Sanitarium at Providence. He left there on Thanksgiving night, 1912, boarded the Providence steamer for New York and jumped overboard. The story was suppressed, however, for an entire year.

Durland killed himself in November, 1911. Tracy, friend of Durland, committed suicide in November, 1912. The truth about Tracy was published in November, 1913, and now, in November, 1914, comes the news of the death of Durland's mother in New York, recalling a series of tragic family sacrifices.

Mrs. Durland will be buried in Boston, where she lived several years.

'FRIDAY 13TH' PARTY ON SHIP FOR SOCIETY

The smart society set of the Back Bay and Brookline is to enjoy a "Friday, the Thirteenth" party aboard the Argentine battleship Rivadavia next week Friday, November 13, as guests of Captain Moneta and his officers of the vessel.

This is to be the farewell hospitality of the Argentine naval officers, in return for many courtesies which have been extended them during their three years' stay in Boston, while the Rivadavia was being built at the Fore River ship yards.

The Argentine idea of a regular party is not to hurry guests away. The festivities will begin at 8 o'clock and will continue for 12 hours, or as long as the company stays, even if after sunrise, according to the gallant Captain Moneta.

When the captain was asked today what diversion he and his officers will provide for Boston society friends, he replied: "Oh, dancing, music, banquet and other things."

The dancing will be jolly. Naval officers are proverbially skilled at that and the Rivadavia's officers come from the very country where the tango was invented.

The big Rivadavia is anchored at Pier 9 in Charlestown Navy Yard, and, so the evening of the "Friday-Thirteenth" party, will be gay with lights, laughter and music.

Another battleship which has been built for the Argentine government at Camden, N. J., the Moreno, is expected in Boston Harbor in a day or two from her trial trips. The officers of the Moreno will be at the Rivadavia's party. Officers from the Charlestown Navy Yard and others in the local naval set will be guests, so there will be quite a company. Upward of 500 invitations have been issued for Bostonians.

The Argentineans have no superstition about Friday, as the Britishers. But they will not sit thirteen at a table. Also they believe it is unlucky to start a sea voyage or matrimonial voyage on Tuesday. And they are superstitious about spilling salt.

The Rivadavia is due to sail from here about Friday, the 20th. But it will not sail on a Tuesday, anyhow. That would be unlucky, according to the best Argentenian "sign."

Meanwhile the holders of those Rivadavia invitations are preparing for all sorts of fun and frolic on the big black battleship on "Friday, the Thirteenth."

Mrs. R. Livingstone Beeckman, who "told the voters what a fine husband Bob is" and helped him win election.

NEWPORT, Nov. 5.—The Eastern Star here, which includes some of the most prominent women in Newport, is doing full honor to Mrs. R. Livingstone Beeckman, whose help—her husband says—was largely responsible for Mr. Beeckman's election as Governor.

When the returns came in a crowd gathered to do honor to Mr. Beeckman, and there were 400 of the Eastern Star members in the throng. They cheered for Mrs. Beeckman fully as much as for her husband.

"My wife helped me very much indeed," is Mr. Beeckman's tribute. And Mrs. Beeckman thus explains her views of the matter:

"I believe every woman should help her husband in every possible way, and in politics she can help him more than in some other businesses.

"I attended many of my husband's rallies and accompanied him on many of his campaigns. I am no speechmaker, and I did not try to make any speeches.

"But I did try to help by working among my women friends—telling them what a fine husband Bob is, and what a first-class all-around man I've always found him to be—and I ought to know, don't you think?

"The women have more influence in campaigns than they are credited with; and I believe my work among the women in Providence and Newport helped not a little.

"When the Eastern Star women came to cheer me, you can imagine how pleased I was.

"My work was all done quietly, but Mr. Beeckman assures me it was effective."

LONDON, Nov. 5.—King George, Queen Mary, Dowager Queen Alexandra, Princess Henry of Battenberg, Premier Asquith, the ambassadors of France, Russia and Japan and other notables attended a memorial service in the chapel of St. James palace today for Prince Maurice of Battenberg, who was killed in battle on the continent.

Suffrage Depends on Official Count

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Dispatches received here today indicate that the official count will be necessary to tell if woman suffrage carried in Montana and Nebraska in Tuesday's election. Nevada grants suffrage.

ELECTION CASES IN COURT.

Andrew J. and John L. Sweeney of No. 132 Congress avenue, Chelsea, were in Chelsea Court today charged with aiding and abetting illegal registration. Their cases were continued until November 17.

SAY HERALDRY OF BOSTONIANS IS 'BORROWED'

Will your coat of arms stand the acid test?

Heraldic experts in Boston are more than willing that some of the coats of arms which adorn family silver, note paper, limousines and so on in this city are more "borrowed" than owned by the users.

The natural question has been "Are all these coats of arms really, truly fitted to those using them, or have some of them been illegally usurped by the owners or paid lithographers?"

Anyhow, the New England Historic Genealogical Society has decided to register genuine coats of arms. Here's a report of the society says:

"A man's right to a coat of arms by inheritance depends on there being some proof of two propositions:

"First—That the family whose arms he claims had a right to bear them.

"Second—That he is directly descended in the male line from that family."

Chairman R. D. Weston of the society said today, in regard to this registration plan:

"This is simply a systematic arrangement to register coats of arms in New England. There must be some standard. Our registering list will help to simplify matters. There will be no hard or fast rule. Many do not care about a coat of arms. Others are intensely interested in them. Those who have a right to their coat of arms should be protected from those who have no such right.

"Our way of determining that right is very broad. If you name is Smith you must prove by your genealogical tree that you have come by right to this particular Smith coat of arms. It is simply a movement to safeguard the coat of arms in the future. Any family can start with a new coat of arms tomorrow and, with certain restrictions, we would be glad to register them in our society."

WEAKENED RACE MAY SPRING UP

Scientists Fear Children of the Future Will Show Traces of Nervous Affections.

"The greatest German authorities are unanimous in stating that the children of the future will in all probability show a great tendency to nervous affections, hysteria, epilepsy and various other mental disturbances. If the rapid growth of nervous debility is not checked," is the statement of a well-known nerve specialist.

"One of the commonest and at the same time most dangerous symptoms of nervous debility is the fact that it robs the victim of refreshing sleep. Such a sufferer will go to bed tired out by the exertions of after a hard day of physical and mental exertion, and, overcome by cold in the body, is craving rest the over-exerted brain loses control of the body, and even when sleep does come it is broken and restless.

"Sufficient sleep is absolutely indispensable to all. It is even more essential to healthy life than food or water. In cases of nervous debility sleep is often either absent or too heavy. All symptoms of depression, that tired feeling, overwrought imagination, dizziness, nervousness, headaches or that run-down feeling are signs of nervous debility, which is being relieved in thousands of cases every day by the new national tonic, Tona Vita.

DEMOCRATS CONTROL NEXT CONGRESS BY A NARROW MARGIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Republican national congressional campaign committee today admitted that the Democrats would have control of the next House. Their acknowledgment was made in the form of a tabulation of returns received up to noon, showing 201 Republicans, 222 Democrats, seven Progressives, one Socialist and an Independent elected and two districts still in doubt.

Latest reports indicate that the Democrats will have a majority of twelve in the Senate. This is a gain of two. The make-up of the Senate will be as follows unless later returns upset the situation:

Democrats, 54; Republicans, 41; Progressives, 1.

Thomas Probably Winner in Colorado

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 5.—Colorado went dry by over 5,000 votes in Tuesday's election. United States Senator Thomas, Democrat, may pull through. Edward T. Keating, Democrat, has probably been re-elected to Congress by a slight plurality. Congressman Seldomridge appears to have been defeated. Congressman Edward T. Taylor won by a small majority. Carlson, Republican, was elected Governor.

Roosevelt in 1916 Says Poindexter

SPOKANE, Nov. 5.—Senator Miles Poindexter, Progressive, declared today that the result of the election showed that the presidential race in 1916 would be between Wilson and Roosevelt. "The latter, he says, "will be supported by the progressives of all parties and will win. Business and the people demand the virile American policy typified by Roosevelt."

How the 'Electoral Vote' Would Have Gone for President on Tuesday

"Wilson Policies," Defeated in Every Northern State Except Indiana and Colorado, Tested by Vote for Congress.

In the Presidential election of 1912 the Republicans (Taft) carried 2 States, Utah and Vermont; Progressives (Roosevelt) carried 6 States, California, Michigan, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Washington; Democrats (Wilson) CARRIED ALL THE OTHER 40 STATES.

Wilson's electoral vote was 435, Roosevelt's 88, Taft's 8.

On Tuesday the country voted on "the Wilson policies." For Representatives in Congress the electoral vote for President is based on the number of Congressional districts—the vote shows what the result would have been if the election had been for President:

While campaigning Mr. London promised that if he was elected he would come from Washington frequently to tell his friends what he has been doing and what he has failed to do.

Ohio Opens Saloons in 45 Dry Counties

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5.—Not only did Ohio vote down State-wide prohibition, but nearly complete returns today show that the voters have written into the constitution by a majority of at least 30,000 the Brewers' Home Rule amendment. This abolishes the Rose County local option law, in effect six years, and opens to saloons forty-five counties which have been dry under option measure.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Coulthurst of Jamaica Plain, a candidate for re-election; Thomas A. Niland of East Boston, Thomas H. Glynn of Dorchester, Henry A. Cosgrey of Roxbury, Frank B. Howland of Ward 17, William F. Doyle of East Boston, and Patrick A. Kearns of Ward 20.

Chamberlain Again Oregon Senator

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 5.—Returns from all parts of the State today show that Senator George E. Chamberlain, Democrat, has been returned to Congress. Otherwise Oregon went cleanly Republican. The State went "dry" by a heavy plurality. The law goes into effect January, 1916.

WIFE TO SUE PALMER, FOE OF COUNTY RING

Jackson Palmer, the wealthy young lawyer and Harvard graduate, who tried to break up the so-called "Middlesex County" ring, and was the central figure in a sensational trial for perjury, is to be sued for divorce by his young wife.

Palmer at his home in Lowell said today:

"Yes, it is true I have been served with notice that my wife will sue for divorce. There will be no contest. Desertion will be charged."

The news of the divorce comes as a surprise to those who recall the wedding seven years ago of the young couple. Mrs. Palmer is the daughter of Dr. Henry P. Perkins of Newton, one of the most famous surgeons in the United States. During Palmer's trial his wife and her father stood by him, and his wife took the stand in his defence. Dr. Perkins has since died.

Palmer is a son of the late Charles Dana Palmer, former Mayor of Lowell, and is a member of the wealthy Hildreth family of Lowell. He was finally acquitted in a perjury charge after a long fight. He and his wife have not lived together for some time. His wife and her mother are now at Landsdale, Pa. There are no children.

Sherman's Election Now Looks Certain

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—With 292 precincts missing from down-State, which is Republican, Lawrence Y. Sherman today was leading Roger C. Sullivan for election to the United States Senate by 6,989. The 2,546 precincts down-State reporting gave Sherman a plurality of 63,588, which more than overcame Sullivan's lead of 56,599 in Chicago and Cook County. It appears that Sherman's election is sure, although it may be several days before the returns are complete. While Sherman's managers claim the election by 15,000, Sullivan still refused to concede defeat.

Boston Vote Against Party Enrollment

Half holidays for State employes.
Yes—36,418 ..... No—15,193

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; robbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, full-laden blood. This masterpiece of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to make the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you gain 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient.

Leading druggists of Boston and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution:—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

SCHAFFER DOES EVERYTHING BUT TALK; STUTTERS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Sylvester Schaffer stutters.

The man who does everything just can't make his tongue behave, and speaks the English language with a pronounced German accent and a distinct stammer.

One thing Schaffer does not do during his wonderful act at Keith's this week is speak. He dashes on and off the stage, or forms a most diversified succession of feats, from shooting a pipe out of a dog's mouth to balancing a one hundred pound Roman chariot upon the tip of his chin, but he never speaks a word.

Even in Germany they say his act is also pantomime, because Schaffer is shy and stammers when he speaks.

I met the man, who holds the stage at Keith's for an hour and a half, in his dressing room just after his act. Remember, he dashes about and goes through ten different vaudeville acts, all of them whizzers, and winds up with his strong-man feat, finally imitating Atlas, and holding up a globe with five persons in it, as he twirls around.

The first thing about Schaffer that surprises you is his size. On the stage he looks to be a big man. In fact, he is a little man. He weighs only 135 pounds. He is barely five feet eight in height. He is very thin, and his arms, though muscular, are not at all thick or sturdy looking. It is nervous energy and latent strength which enables Schaffer to perform his amazing accomplishments.

"I have lived most of my life in Berlin, but my family is Austrian," said Schaffer after greetings had been exchanged. As he talked I realized that it was more than a German accent he was contending with. It was a slight impediment. The combination made him hard to understand for a few moments.

Schaffer has a keen, eager, intelligent face. He likes to get to the bottom of things.

"When I see anybody doing something, I want to do it, and I try and usually I find it is not so hard. That is why I have become expert in so many different things.

"Of what am I most proud of all my accomplishments? That which I like best is my violin playing, but I am not proud of it. I do the best I can."

Models in 'Nighties,' Barred at Charity Show of Costumes

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The censors at the charity costume exhibition at the Ritz-Carlton, which continues today and tomorrow afternoon and evening, draw the line at models in "nighties," but allow those in bathing suits. The elimination of the "nightie" model still leave 104 girls, parading in the finest costumes that New York modistes can devise.

The exhibition is given under the patronage of smart society. The proceeds are for women and children made destitute by the war.

The costumes are of New York make and are designed, for one thing, to show that this metropolis can equal Paris in style. The modistes sent their loveliest models to display the garments and the result is stunning.

The society women on the committee chose a jury of censors from their own members. This jury includes Mesdames Arthur Scott Burden, James R. Eustis, J. Gordon Douglas, Ernest Iselin, Ogden L. Mills and William K. Vanderbilt, Jr. The censors allowed the bathing suit models, but "declared" one bewitching girl who started to enter, clad in a fluffy, flimsy night gown and carrying a lighted candle.

Boston suffragists will celebrate the suffrage victories in Montana and Nevada at a public meeting in Tremont Theatre on Sunday afternoon. OVERTURES TO SAXON KING BY EX-WIFE FAIL

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The former Crown Princess Louise of Saxony is in Brussels seeking, but without success so far, a reconciliation with her first husband, King Frederick Augustus of Saxony, whom she deserted twelve years ago in a mad infatuation for Professor Giron, her children's tutor.

Information from Brussels today said that the "Madcap Princess," as she is known to scandalized Europe, is endeavoring daily to gain audience with King Frederick, who is in the Belgian capital. The King, however, declines resolutely to see her.

The former Crown Princess married Enrico Toselli, the composer, four years after eloping with Giron, but she has left Toselli and, by another strange turn of her wilful affections, would again return to the staid and formal Saxon court on which she went as a bride and whose punctilious etiquette she could not endure.

If ever a woman threw away a throne and children for love this beautiful but uncontrollable Princess did. She was Louise of Tuscany, a member of the royal family of Austria. She was born at Salzburg in 1870. When scarcely twenty-one years old she was married to Frederick Augustus, then Crown Prince now King of Saxony.

The wedding was royally sumptuous. The couple lived in the palace at Dresden. Four children were born to the Crown Princess. Then rumors of bitter quarrels were heard.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ½ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair.

FEAR CATTLE PLAGUE AMONG STATE HERDS

The dreaded cattle ailment, the foot and mouth disease, which has suddenly reached record proportions in this country, is now reported in Massachusetts.

Immediately upon receipt of telegraphic notice from Amherst today Fred F. Walker, Commissioner of Animal Industry in this district, left for Amherst, to inspect cattle on the farm of George Henry, a big cattle dealer. The Henry farm is already under quarantine.

Before leaving, the commissioner said that if he found traces of the foot and mouth disease, he would kill the cattle.

The notice to the commissioner was received from Dr. H. E. Paige, local inspector at Amherst for the Bureau of Animal Industry. The telegram read:

James and I feel certain of the existence of the foot and mouth disease among cattle on premises of George Henry. Everything placed under strictest quarantine.

The "James" mentioned by Inspector Paige is his brother, Dr. James B. Paige, head of the veterinary science department at Amherst Agricultural College.

TAKE ACTIVE MEASURES.

Accompanying Commissioner Walker to Amherst was Dr. J. F. Ryder, agent at Boston of the Federal bureau of animal industry of the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

Meanwhile both federal and State governments had been taking desperately active measures in Massachusetts to keep the epidemic out if possible and to stamp it out if here.

Before departing for Amherst State Commissioner Walker said:

"This department has inspected every shipment of cattle from other States since we were warned that the disease had been found in the Buffalo stock yards. The period of incubation of the disease is from three to six days. All incoming cattle are quarantined for ten days and given a thorough examination. It is entirely possible, however, that a case might slip by, and I want to urge the cattle owners of Massachusetts to be continually on the watch and to lose no time in reporting any case discovered to this department. The whole State may be quarantined if one case is neglected. No cases have been discovered in Massachusetts yet, but the danger cannot be overestimated."

Arrangements have been made to have the keys of the "white yards" of the New England Dressed Meat and Wool Company, the Brighton quarantine station and the Union Stock Yards at Watertown turned over to agents of the State or government so that cattle shipped into the State could not be released until they have been thoroughly examined for the epidemic.

Commissioner Walker issued an appeal to all cattle dealers, farmers and others to cooperate with the authorities in guarding against this cattle plague.

PACKERS DEFY U. S. ORDER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The Chicago packing houses will evade the State order that the stock yards be closed to the receipt of animals for slaughter by unloading the hogs and sheep at the slaughter houses and driving them direct into the killing.

Indignation was great among the cattle dealers and government inspectors over this plan to evade the spirit of the closing order.

The government left the Federal government now is to forbid the railroads to ship cattle across the Illinois State line.

Symptoms of Dreaded Hoof and Mouth Disease

Here is how to tell if your cattle or animals have the hoof and mouth disease, as given by Commissioner Walker:

The cattle stand "hunched up," with hair slightly erect.

Salivation accompanied by lameness.

Abscesses between the toes and at the top of the hoof and in the mouth.

High temperature.

For aid, call the Department of Animal Industry, Room 138, State House, Fred F. Walker, Commissioner.

Service Board Hears Consolidation Plea

The Public Service Commission today held hearings on the proposed consolidation of transportation lines in the Metropolitan district. Attorney James F. Jackson, for the Bay State Railway, argued in support of the consolidation of the Bay State and Elevated. He proposed a zone system of fares and put Civil Engineer Frank R. Walker on the stand to explain a scheme to unite electric and steam lines to make three routes for suburban traffic into Boston.

SMITH-HANAN NOW WORKING FOR $15 A WEEK

Boston, Newport and Narragansett Pier people who attended the wedding of Talbot Smith-Hanan, the millionaire, and Florence Amelia Perkins, the expressman' daughter, in New York on January 29 last, will be interested to know what the rich young husband has been working as an interior decorator at $15 a week and that he has a special reason of his own for so doing.

The reason is best worded by Smith-Hanan's mother, Mrs. John H. Hanan of New York and the Pier, Mrs. Hanan, now staying at her Fifth Avenue mansion, where her son and daughter-in-law are, brushed aside her son's stammering protest with these words:

"But I shall explain. It is something to be proud of. I'm going to be a grandmother in January or February and Talbot declares this baby is not going to have an idler for a father."

BRIDE IS DELIGHTED.

Young Mrs. Smith-Hanan is quoted as being delighted at her husband being at work. She said:

"It is so splendid of Talbot. It is just what I would have wanted him to do."

The romance of the Talbot Smith-Hanans dates from the Summer of 1912, when Isaac Perkins, expressman at Narragansett Pier, drove into Mrs. John H. Hanan's yard on an errand, with his sixteen-year-old girl "Flossie" beside him on the seat. Young Talbot Smith-Hanan, then nineteen, came out, saw "Flossie," and a wedding at the Church of the Transfiguration in New York last January was the result.

Talbot is the grandson of the late Colonel Howard Smith of Newport and is worth a million in his own right, independent of his rich stepfather, John H. Hanan.

His own story in New York today of how he sought and found work under an assumed name is thus:

FELT IT A DUTY.

"You see," he said, "I felt it my duty to do something. I am not capable of entering into business, because I know no business. Then I remembered that it was not fair for me to go out and take a place which somebody in less fortunate circumstances might need. And I felt reasonably certain that were I to go forth seeking a job under my own name I would have no trouble because of the promise held out by my money.

"I decided that the best way out of it was to go poking around of my own accord and under an assumed name. I am rather artistically inclined and not half bad at sketching and I looked for work along that line. I might have had one or two jobs but they were of a sort which somebody more worthy might get. So I passed those up and went for others.

Hires Chauffeur Again, Though She Says He Stole

The golden rule was the incentive to Mrs. William Pray of No. 3 Locust Park, Everett, to re-employ Louis Zega, the twenty-four-year-old chauffeur, who is under $2,000 bonds on the charge of stealing $15,691 in cash from her.

"If you were placed in the same position as this young man, don't you think it would do you more good to be treated the way we are treating him than to be sent to jail?" asked Mrs. Pray today.

"Yes? Well, that's the way we look at it. We have taken him back as chauffeur because we believe he means to go right from now on. His act was thoughtless and he has repented.

"Of course, I could have him sent to jail, but that wouldn't get me my money back, nor would it make me any happier. He is the best chauffeur we ever had, and so long as he does right he can stay with us."

Mrs. Pray would not say whether young Zega was making restitution by working for her. Zega, it is said, had spent several thousand dollars before he was captured by private detectives after a chase across three States. He is out on bail furnished by Mrs. Pray's husband. He operates the automobile which he bought with some of the money alleged to have been stolen.

Shoplifter's Story Saves Her in Court

MILLIONS OF KISSES IN EMERY'S NOTES TO WIFE

Love letters of the late Judge Samuel E. Emery to his wife—letters full of kisses by the hundred million, love by the hundred million bushels, and endearing epithets of every variety—were read today during the hearing of the contest of Judge Emery's will. Mrs. Emery was the witness today, and twice broke into tears.

Judge Emery left his $40,000 estate and a handsome home in Portsmouth, N. H., to his wife, Mrs. Mary E. B. Emery. She was his second wife. By his first wife he had three children—Samuel W. Emery, Mrs. Mabel Emery Weeks, and Marguerite L. Emery—and it is they who seek to break the will on the ground that Mrs. Emery, their stepmother, exercised undue influence upon their father.

The first wife, who divorced Mr. Emery six weeks before he married again, was a witness in the case yesterday. Mr son, Samuel Emery, one of the contestants of the will, is conducting his own case, and yesterday he examined his own mother on the stand, and today cross-examined his stepmother.

The love letters, all written after the marriage of Judge Emery to his second wife, were introduced by the attorney for the estate. One, dated June 16, 1899, when they were six years married, began:

"Dear, Good Sweet Wife."

In another occurred the paragraph: "Everything is well and sweet. Bruce and he is running wild. He's off with the dogs all the time."

The attorney asked Mrs. Emery to explain this reference. Her eyes filled with tears as she answered:

"Bruce was a pet dog."

Another letter ended:

"I send you my love with a hundred million kisses."

In still another, Judge Emery wrote:

"I love you with all my heart. I want you to be right at the door when I come home. You are the dearest wife that ever was."

LONGED FOR LETTER.

Still another:

"The old man loves you, but he's got a little nervous. Won't you please send me a nice, loving letter tonight, just like old times."

And again:

"I miss you awfully, you sweet, good dear you. Look out for a good old hug tonight from your old hubby, who loves you one hundred million bushels."

It was under cross-examination by her stepson that Mrs. Emery told her story today. She said she lived at Rockingham Junction, that her father was a hotel keeper, that he engaged Emery—then a prosperous attorney—to conduct some business for him, that Mr. Emery in 1892 and 1893 had to settle up her father's estate and that in the process they became friends.

"I wrote him many happy, cheering letters in the Spring of 1893," Mrs. Emery said. "A letter written by Mr. Emery and read yesterday said these letters "awakened those thoughts of love in him," and Judge Emery's son, conducting the cross-examination, asked:

THOUGHTS OF LOVE.

"What was it in those letters of yours that awakened those thoughts of love?"

"I don't know as I can tell," Mrs. Emery replied. She added, in response to another question:

"In the latter part of April, 1892, we had a little talk, and after that our letters were more personal."

Q.—When did you first learn he was married? A.—I don't think it was till late in April, 1893.

Q.—You say you write him very sympathetic letters. Why sympathetic? Was it because he had left his wife and children? A.—Because he had such an unfortunate—

She was not allowed to finish. Attorney Emery asked:

Q.—Did you call him "my husband" in letters before you were married? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Did you permit him to address you as "my wife" in letters before your marriage to him? A.—He asked my permission and I granted it.

She testified that it was a widow at the time of her marriage to Emery. They were wed in November, 1892, six weeks or so after his first wife had divorced him.

ADOPTED HER SISTER.

"After our marriage," she continued, "My sisters, Florence and Maud came to live with us. Mr. Emery adopted Maud. I opposed the adoption. I thought she was rather old to be my daughter. That was in 1897. It was not because I feared she would become his heir that I opposed the adoption.

"He educated and clothed my sisters. Of course they were not clothed as well as I. He gave me an engagement ring and much jewelry up to the time of his death. I gave him many presents from my pin money."

"Was he liberal to you?"

Tears filled Mrs. Emery's eyes, and her voice broke. "He was kind and generous and liberal beyond his means," she said.

Sullivan was found guilty and fined $10. He appealed.

HARVARD MEN TO CARRY FLAG DESPITE LAW

Harvard men will "defy the police" on Saturday and march to the Stadium, some 2,000 strong, with their crimson banners unfurled. Arrangements for the parade are practically completed and each class will troop along as well as a large alcd body of alumni. The undergraduates have been selling large sized crimson handkerchiefs during the past few days for use in the formation of the crimson "H" on a white background during the Stadium demonstration and on the box from which the kerchiefs have been peddled was pasted this sign: "Defy the police, we must have a band."

Among the men who will carry the Crimson banners, according to present plans, are Russell H. Ayres, captain of the ball team; William H. Claflin, captain of the hockey seven; Frank W. Capper, captain of the track team; R. Norris Williams, the national tennis singles champion, and Dick Harte, president of the sophomores.

Kaurich's band will lead the long line of march.

The Cambridge police, according to Acting Chief Murray, will not interfere with the parade in any manner. If, however, any one seems fit to make a complaint, the police officers along the march will take the names and addresses of the bearers of the crimson flags and they will be later hailed into court. This will a test case be made.

"They can carry their banners for all of me," said Chief Murray today. "While there is no practical difference between the red flag of the Socialist and the crimson of Harvard, my men will not interfere with the paraders unless someone files a complaint and then we will go about our business in a quiet and orderly way."

Several Harvard jurists, among them Judge Stone of Cambridge, speaking not in their official capacity but as men, also agree that there is no difference between the two emblems. The Harvard Alumni Bulletin, published today, editorially comments:

"A decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts on this case, handed down through the Chief Justice, is so worded that in a correct application of the statute the banner of Harvard appears to fall equally under condemnation with that of which Webster's Dictionary is found to say: 'Historically, a red flag has been a revolutionary and terroristic emblem.' It would be more than human for Socialists to sit quiet under any occasion for protest, and it has been declared that if the crimson banner of Harvard is carried in public the law must be brought to bear upon it.

"Had the undergraduates chosen to adopt a defiant attitude and put the question to a test, they might have celebrated their Michigan victory with a procession and a red flag. The law was evidently not intended to curb the Harvard banner, for since it may do something of the sort—and at the same time touch the flag of our friendly northern neighbor, of the harmless, necessary auctioneer, and we know not what other innocent insignia—the reasonable thing for the part of the Supreme Court would be to repeal it, or so amend it as to prevent its doing what it was never meant to do.

Koenigsberg had been harrying British shipping in the South seas. She sank the liner City of Winchester near the entrance to the gulf of Aden on August 6 and disabled the British cruiser Pegasus in the harbor of Zanzibar on September 20.

The British and Japanese ships that have been hunting the Emden have also been conducting a search for the Koenigsberg.

Eight Japanese warships are reported rushing for the Chilean coast, eager to avenge the defeat of Admiral Cradock's British fleet. The Japanese were last reported at Easter Island, about 2,300 miles off the South American coast.

Two reports of the death of General Alexander von Kluck, commander of the German troops that nearly reached the walls of Paris, were received today. The Bordeaux correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph informed his paper that General von Kluck had been killed by a bomb dropped on the German general staff headquarters. Another dispatch sent to the Paris Excelsior by its Bordeaux correspondent declared the German commander died ten days ago in a Namur hospital from a wound in the head.

450,000 BRITISH TROOPS IN WAR.

Alarmed by the possible results which might follow German occupation of the coasts of Belgium and northeastern France, England has rushed reinforcements to the front and it is now estimated that 450,000 British soldiers have been poured into France and Belgium since the outbreak of the war. The number of English troops fighting with the French and Belgians is less than that number now, owing to heavy losses which have been inflicted in the violent fighting, especially in the northern sphere of hostilities.

The latest batch of British reinforcements include marines that were landed from English men-of-war at Dunkirk and other points near the Belgian border. They have been pushed forward to oppose the German forces which have been struggling toward the English Channel coast.

The great battle front, more than 200 miles in length, is still marked by hard fighting at many points. There are numerous zones of vigorous activity, but the three chief areas stretch from Ypres to Arras, from Soissons to Craonne and from the Argonne district past Verdun, down the Meuse valley.

According to reports the Germans are still in Lille, the allies having failed to dislodge them, although they have been attacking steadily for nearly three weeks. The Germans have an immense amount of havy artillery around Lille and Arras, and the roar of these big guns is incessant.

Taking the offensive against the Germans, the allies have crossed the Yser River, according to official statement issued at Paris this afternoon. It states that they have advanced slightly to the east of Nieuport on the right bank of the Yser. The statement says that the Germans also renewed their attacks Tuesday, but with lessened energy.

COSSACK VICTORIES OVER TURKS.

Additional victories for Russian troops in their invasion of Asiatic Turkey were announced in an official report from the general staff issued at Petrograd today. The Cossack forces are advancing rapidly and inflicting sudden blows upon the Turks. Victories over Turkish forces are reported at Ardost, in the Caucasus; at Id, fifteen miles west of Ardost; at Khorasan, at Mysseme, and at Diyadin.

The British cruiser Minerva is reported to have shelled five Turkish towns on the Arabian coast in addition to Akaba. Signs of unrest are apparent among the native population at Cairo, but the declaration of martial law has maintained quiet. Native agitators are being arrested in large numbers.

Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish ambassador, and his staff left London today for the Continent and the rupture of relations between England and the Porte was complete. Immediately after the departure of the Turkish ambassador the British Official Gazette announced that a state of war existed between Great Britain and Turkey from today. King George signed the following proclamation of war after a meeting of the Privy Council at Buckingham Palace:

"Owing to hostile acts committed by Turkish forces under German officers, a state of war exists between Great Britain and Turkey from today. All proclamations and orders in council issued in reference to state of war between Great Britain and Austria shall also apply to the state of war between Great Britain and Turkey."

MONSTER GUNS ON BRITISH WARSHIPS CARRY DEATH FOR MILES TO GERMANS

JAP SQUADRON IS SEEKING VICTORS OF FIGHT OFF CHILE

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 5.—The next great sea battle in the Pacific will probably be fought between the German cruisers which defeated an English squadron off the Chilean coast and Japanese warships, which are reported to be on their way toward American waters.

A steam collier, which has just arrived from Easter Island, reports having seen eight powerful Japanese men-of-war. Easter Island lies about 2,300 miles west of Chile, and if the Japanese men-of-war steamed westward at a rate of speed equaling that of the collier they should be near the American coast now.

The Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, two of the German cruisers in the fleet which decisively defeated Rear Admiral Cradock's fleet on Sunday evening, sending the cruiser Monmouth to the bottom, called at Easter Island on October 14. The ships had come from Australia and took on board large quantities of provisions.

The German men-of-war also took on supplies at this port. It is believed that their precipitate departure was to prevent being bottled up by a superior Japanese fleet. When the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst departed they were accompanied by the light cruiser Nuernberg. They did not reveal their destination, but Admiral Graf Von Spee, the commander of the German squadron, caused it to be known that he was off to intercept a British merchantman which was somewhere off the coast.

PUSHING ON TOWARD COAST OF FRANCE, SAYS BERLIN REPORT

by FREDERICK WERNER.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—German troops are making progress in their campaign to reach the French Coast, it was announced here today; but it was stated that their progress would necessarily have to be slow because the allies are using all their available forces and have constructed strong defensive works.

The Russian claims that they have taken thousands of prisoners and many guns from the Germans in Poland were officially denied. The statement relating to the Russian claims of great victories was as follows:

"The Germans have lost no machine guns. Their retirement upon their entrenched line in Poland was wholly successful."

Discussing the German operations about Ypres, Belgium, Major Mohrat, military expert of the Tageblatt, says that the Kaiser's forces will drive the English back to the sea. He asserts that the Germans are pounding the French left wing at Arras with probability of success, and that the steady German attacks along the Aisne east of Soissons are part of the same campaign.

"Our progress here," he states "must give satisfaction to the Germans, who have not been delighted with the long duration of the fighting. In these days of our tense waiting the German people rejoice over every intimation of a victorious advance. This, however, can only proceed slowly owing to the strong defensive works built by the enemy for weeks."

The German news bureau gave out the following today: "The Swedish shipping association declares that the English, in blocking the North Sea by mines, have delivered blows to shipping of the neutral powers.

Germans Fortify Along the Bruges

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 5.—The Germans are building fortifications along a line from Zeebrugge to Dudzeele and further along the canal in an easterly direction, according to the newspaper Nieuws Van Den Dag. Up until Wednesday it was still possible to reach Bruges by the canal, but the waterway is now guarded by a strong detachment of armed German motor boats that are guarding all the routes.

Official War Reports.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—On our left wing the allied forces have progressed slightly to the east of Nieuport on the right bank of Yser. From Dixmunde to the Rivers Lys, the German attacks were renewed yesterday, but at a number of points with lessened energy, especially in the infantry operations. The Franco-British lines have withdrawn at no point, and our troops taking the offensive have made notable progress in several directions, between the region of La Bassee and the River Somme.

The day was marked particularly by an artillery battle in the region of Roye. We have maintained our occupation of Quesnoy-En-Santerre and have advanced appreciably toward Andechy.

At the centre, between the Oise and the Moselle Rivers a recrudescence of activity on the part of the Germans is reported, manifested particularly by artillery fire. Some attacks by the enemy at different points on our front, have been completely repulsed, some times after a conflict which last a whole day.

On our right wing there is nothing to report.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—In the Caucasus one of our columns suddenly attacked the enemy near Ardost, fifteen miles south of Kars, near the Armenian frontier. The Turks fled, deserting their wounded.

Dislodging the Turks from their positions at Id (about fifty-eight miles west of Ardost) the Russian troops took a large quantity of food. Our troops captured Khorasan (southeast of Id in Armenia) after a sharp fight. On November 2 we captured Bayasid after routing the Turkish troops, who offered strong resistance.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, Nov. 5, via Berlin and Amsterdam.—Movements of our troops in Russian Poland yesterday were not seriously hindered by the enemy. One of our army corps on the Lysagora front captured two Russian officers and 2,200 men.

On the Galician front more than 200 Russians surrendered at Pudhoj, south of Sambor, and this morning 300 more surrendered south of Jaroslav.

Some of the Boer forces have refused to yield, and are conducting guerilla warfare, but adequate forces have been sent against them, and a complete collapse of the revolt is expected.

KAISER IS AGING FAST UNDER STRAIN OF WAR; MARTIAL BEARING GONE

By W. M. DUCKWORTH,

Special war Correspondent of the Boston American and the London Daily News.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 5.—From reliable information obtained in Berlin I am able to give an account of how the strain of war is telling on the health of the Kaiser. Since the outbreak of war he has visited Berlin only once—when returning from the eastern battlefield. He did not stay at his usual residence but at the smaller palace. The imperial palace is closed. No guards are outside, the blinds are drawn and the windows unwashed.

The Kaiser has lost his former air of bustling activity.

His soldierly bearing is subdued, says my informant, who personally saw the Emperor and described him as much older in appearance. His countenance is grave and careworn and his hair is almost white.

His reception in Berlin shows he is still popular with the people. The Vossische Zeitung prints the latest utterances of the Kaiser to his troops.

The chaplain after a service in camp on the western battlefield had an audience with the Kaiser, who asked that the following message be delivered to the soldiers:

"Salute my gallant comrades remaining at the front. Tell them to put their faith in God, who will soon give victory to our arms."

The Kaiserin has been visiting military hospitals in various parts of Germany. A few days ago she visited the wounded at Koenigsberg.

Replying there to birthday congratulations sent by the Berlin municipality, the Empress spoke of the "high moral force" which has placed in our beloved people, making it possible for them to bear unprecedented sacrifice in certain confidence of ultimate victory.

NEW PROOFS OF WOMEN'S HELP AT TEA PARTY

"Women helped to throw the tea overboard at the Boston tea party in 1773," claims Emma C. Poore of the New Thought Church, a well-known lecturer on Boston's early history.

Miss Poore believes that the more the subject is aired, the brighter will Boston's part in that event shine. She despises New York's attempt to belittle our part in Revolutionary history.

"New York has always been anxious to take some historical honors from Boston. This recent invasion of the historical rights of Boston only helps to establish Boston's fame," continued Miss Poore.

"Down there near the site of Old Griffin's Wharf, if you should dig, you will find the scent of the tea leaves yet. It was a great event for Boston. Just 1,000 people, men, women and youngsters, went down to the wharf and demanded entrance to the three boats, Dartmouth, Eleanor and Beaver. Then they took the tea chests and sent them spinning over the sides of the ships.

"Just as soon as any of these chests neared the shore, there the women gathered and dispatched the chests. Boston's women in the great Tea Party played a conspicuous part. We are apt to overlook this. New York has nothing accomplished by women in Revolutionary times to point to compared with what Boston women did.

"Some of the descendants of these women had these lines of poetry framed in after years to commemorate the event.

"You may scour or wash the coat, it you will,
But the scent of tea leaves will stay sound it still.

"It was the 114 tea chests found on board the Dartmouth that the women of Boston smashed."

ENGLAND'S NAVAL LOSS GREATER THAN GERMANY'S

Here are the vessels of the two belligerents destroyed, captured or interned since the war began:

GERMANS MUST SUCCUMB SAYS HENRI BERGSON

By HENRI BERGSON.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Germany will succumb in this war because she is exhausting her material and moral forces and cannot renew them.

She has the money, but her credit is going and she will not be able to borrow. She wants nitrate for explosives, petrol for motors, bread for 65,000,000 inhabitants. The day is inevitably coming when she will not be able to get these things.

Germany is making a frightful consumption of life, which are irreplaceable. Morally, also, she is exhausting her resources. Militarized Germany lives on the Bismarckian ideal that might is right and she practices the cult of brute force.

France has the ideal of justice and liberty on her side. Her ideal will kill the German ideal.

GERMANS LOSE 15,000 MEN AND 100 GUNS IN FLIGHT FROM POLAND

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—The southern German column retreating from Poland has been overtaken below Kielce by the Russians and completely crushed, according to the official Army Messenger. It states that the Russians have captured 200 officers, 15,000 men and more than 100 guns. The Germans in East Prussia also are retreating.

"The whole German campaign against Russia is now rapidly crumbling," says the Army Messenger. "The southern column, which is retreating from Poland, has been overtaken and crushed below Kielce. The Russians captured 200 officers, 15,000 men and more than 100 guns.

"Even in East Prussia there has been a sharp collapse in the German operations. They have abandoned their steady offensive and begun a rapid retreat."

TURKS, DUPED BY GERMAN TRICK, STARTED WAR, SAYS PETROGRAD

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—This statement was issued at the Admiralty:

"The Admiralty has ascertained that the Turkish fleet has concentrated on its base in the straits and refuses to fight the Russian Black Sea squadron.

"It is plain that the old Turk party and the Sultanate are utterly dismayed by the promptness of Russia's military campaign.

"From information that has reached Odessa from Constantinople it appears that the German cruiser Goeben sent a radiogram to Constantinople, asserting that the Russians had made a treacherous attack upon Turkish ships. The Turkish ministers, not suspecting that they were being entrapped into action by the Germans on the Goeben, held an immediate council and approved the defensive action which the Goeben reported it had taken on the following day.

"When the ships returned to the Bosphorus the whole fraud of the Goeben's report was established. Jenal Pasha, the Turkish Minister of Marine, examined the commanders of the ships separately. Their versions as to the place, time and number of the Russian ships during the alleged attack were contradictory. Meanwhile news arrived that the Dardanelles had entered Egypt and the Porte fell into confusion.

"Late Friday evening the Grand Vizier summoned another council and put forward a proposal to remove the Germans and offer compensation. He suggested that they should maintain diplomatically that the Turkish government believed that the Russians had begun the attack. His proposal was never carried into effect as Russia had already withdrawn her Ambassador."

LEVINSKY AND MANTELL MEET IN FEATURE BOUT AT PROVIDENCE TONIGHT

LEVINSKY AND MANTELL MEET IN BIG BOUT

By RINGSIDE.

THE political orators of Rhode Island are today forced to occupy a seat in the rear of the public stage, as Daniel Morgan of New York city has invaded their stronghold. Daniel talks so long and loudly that the poor old politicians will be lucky if they get in even a few words.

Be it known to all whom it may concern that Battling Levinsky, one of Morgan's prize fighters, is scheduled to battle Frank Mantell of Pawtucket in a fifteen-round bout at the opening show of the Rhode Island A. C. in Thornton.

Morgan, of course, may not make the trip to Thornton with Levinsky. Governor-elect Charles S. Whitman of New York may wish Daniel to map out a political schedule for him, in which case the peace-loving citizens of Rhode Island will be obliged to exist without exchanging words with Morgan. Personally we believe that Mr. Whitman will manage to struggle along without Daniel's assistance.

ONE might conclude that this is a story about Morgan, but such is not the case. Levinsky and Mantell are the young men who are going to receive some attention. The bout between these two boxers should furnish a hard, fast battle. Both men are fast and clever, while each of them is reported to be a sweet puncher.

Levinsky rules a favorite in the betting. He has been one of the busiest heavyweights in the world during the past couple of years. He has engaged in two or three fights almost every week and has experienced considerable success. His favorite sport is beating "white hopes" who scale around the 200 pounds. This seems to be an easy task for the Battler, who only weighs 171 pounds. The members of the middleweight division have caused Levinsky much more trouble than the big, awkward "hopeless hopers" Levinsky recently met "Dunboat" Smith in New York and outpointed him.

MANTELL is a battle scarred veteran of the ring. He weighs 175 pounds, which will give him a slight advantage on Levinsky, but it is not enough to make any material difference.

Mantell has been earning a livelihood by the use of his fists for the past eight years and during this time has exchanged blows with such well-known performers as Jack Dillon, Sullivan, Bill McKinnon, Leo Houck, Billy Papke and Frank Kaiser. He met Levinsky in New York in June, 1911, when the battling person was known as Barney Williams. The Lissie boy's story ends.

A GOOD card of preliminary bouts has been lined up for tonight and will be two eight-round bouts. Dave Powers of Malden will meet "Young" McFarland of Providence, while "Young" Ryan and "Young" Cooper, both of Providence, will clash in the other encounter.

JOE JEANETTE expects to win in his twelve-round bout with Battling Jim Johnson, which will be staged before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Joe is in good condition and wants to prove that he is Johnson's master. Jeanette is a little heavier than Johnson, but the latter is a big, powerful fellow and is able to cause trouble for the best of them, as he proved in his tussle with Sam Langford.

JOHNSON is crude and awkward, but he has natural ability and will make a great fighter. He is over six feet tall, while he scales more than 200 pounds. He performed very well the night he lost to "Porky" Flynn, but should look better when he fought Langford.

JEANETTE has got appeared in a bout in Providence once before, he was beaten by Sam Langford in a twelve-round tussle at the Armory A. A. on January 10, 1911.

The semi-final bout of eight rounds, which will be between Walter Butler and Charley Beyers, has aroused considerable interest and is expected to be crowded with action.

Two six-round preliminary tussles have been arranged, Johnny Coles of South Boston will meet Battling McFarland of Providence, while Willie Green and Johnny Marony, both of South Boston, will exchange blows in the other six-round session.

GILBERT GALLANT will train at Highland Lake for his ten-round bout with Leach Cross, which will take place in New York on Wednesday, Dec. 17. Joe Farren, the East Boston welterweight, has been secured to act as one of Gallant's sparring partners. Farren is one of the best boxers of his weight in these parts and should be able to give Gallant some valuable assistance.

PADDY HEHIR of Worcester will be one of the boxers who will appear in a bout held by the Lakeside A. C. of Webster this season. Hehir is a comparatively unknown, but has undertaken a prominent part in all branches of the game for some years. He is well known in this city as a result of his feats on the cinder path and indeed he took the measure of his acting as the third man in the ring at some of the big wrestling matches which have been staged here.

Here's a New Hope.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Tommy McCarty, who claims relationship with the late Luther McCarty, proved that he was a worthy member of the family. Tom battled Jim Savage ten rounds in the Bronx Gym and had all the best in eight of the rounds.

You Can Ask the Man Next Door if This Ain't True

MAGNATES MEET TODAY AND MAY OUST FARRELL

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Is Frank J. Farrell to remain as owner and president of the American League baseball club in Greater New York? This is the question that adds spice to the annual confab of all American League moguls here today.

There is little doubt that Farrell would like to retain the franchise, but he may be compelled to pass over his holdings to another for several reasons. President Johnson of the American League was asked today whether Farrell was to remain in active charge of the New York club, and made the following significant reply:

"I don't know. That is something that will be determined at the meeting today."

The American League chieftain was asked what would be done if Farrell decided that he wanted to remain. "If Farrell decided to remain it would not affect the question," said Johnson. "It would be a subject to be determined by the American League. Mr. Farrell has a number of interests outside of baseball that consume much of his time."

The American League chief denied the reports of Brooklyn would purchase the New York franchise provided Farrell sold his interest in the club. That sets at rest all speculation concerning the Federal League as a factor in the disposition of the team.

CHANCE'S RELEASE CAUSE.

It was the quarrel between Chance and William S. Devery that opened Johnson's eyes to the real conditions in the New York club. Those close to Johnson say the American League chief vowed that Devery must go, and inasmuch as Farrell has backed Devery in all his moves, it is hinted the president of the New York club will be glad to sever his connections with the club in Gotham after tidying it over with the magnate here. It is said Johnson informed in no uncertain voice that he is about to wield the big stick.

It will be recalled that Jimmy McAleer was forced to sell his holdings in the Boston Red Sox, or at least he was under pressure from within to do so, great as to cause him to leave the club. In fact the deal for the purchase of the Red Sox was consummated when McAleer was on the train en route to Chicago.

It will not surprise the wise ones if Farrell follows McAleer out of the American League. Whether he wishes to remain will not save him from going if Ban Johnson has decided the issue.

WAR ON FEDERALS.

In addition to the routine business of the league the subject of the Federal League is bound to come up for discussion. The magnates of the American League undoubtedly would welcome a settlement of the present controversy, but they are said to be unanimous in opposing recognition of the Feds.

"I was surprised to see a criticism of the magnates on the part of the leaders in the Federal League in their plans for peace," said President Johnson. "There is nothing to hinder any club in the fed from buying players if it so desires. So far as organized baseball is concerned no plans have been made and until there is nothing definite it would be foolish to make announcements."

CHASING THE PIGSKIN

WHEN Harvard played Michigan there were on the hospital list nearly enough first-class players to form a first-class eleven—an eleven that probably would have held its own against any team in the country. There was Brickley to begin with. He is almost a backfield in himself. Then there was Mahan, one of the very best players in the country. Soucy, the centre-rush, was also suffering from injuries. And Pennock, the All-American guard. And Morgan. These are the more prominent.

It doesn't seem as if Logan, the Harvard quarterback, was receiving the credit due him for the splendid way he has been handling the Crimson team. Dudley Dean, the old Harvard quarter, was speaking about Logan today. He said:

"I suppose I naturally pay considerable attention to the quarterback play in the games that I see. I haven't been able to find a flaw in Logan's work for some time. I can't see that he makes any mistakes; in fact, his judgment has been almost perfect. None of them has anything on him."

THE White "H" will make its first appearance of the year on the Princeton game on Saturday, when the Harvard undergraduates in the west section of the Stadium will form the letter by casting white handkerchiefs to the background of solid crimson.

This is very fine. If the Harvard players would only wear numbers on their backs our happiness would be complete.

HARVARD has fought its way through its schedule without losing this season, which is more than most teams can claim. And the Crimson has had a tougher schedule than would appear at first sight.

The truth of the matter is that Harvard has had a hard year. Every game for the past three years Harvard, while for the most part teams that have made the Crimson look like the "big game" of the season.

THERE was Tufts to begin with. The Medford team prepares itself especially for the Harvard game for the past three years and many of its supporters are confident that Harvard would be defeated. Tufts made "Big Game" of her schedule.

Then came Penn State with its powerful line. This team had been hoping to get at the Crimson and came primed to the task. Thanks to a bit of luck, Harvard was able to stand these fellows off in the end.

Then came Michigan to play a game it had been looking forward to for many months. The West had been preparing for the Wolverines. They tried hard and succeeded was put to it to win, 7 to 6.

In short, the Harvard schedule has been a hard one. It has been all maneuvering to bring the team through with a whole skin.

NO matter where he is placed, Charlie Hardwick continues to shine, and continues to prove that he is one of the best all-around players that ever stepped in a gridiron. As a halfback, on offense or defense, as an end rush, as a punter, as a kicker of goals from touchdowns, or as a barrier of forward passes he proves his worth in every game he plays.

DARTMOUTH better watch out when it tackles the Syracuse team at Fenway Park next week. The New Yorkers have a trick play which it is said never fails. A Syracuse writer says:

"This trick play has been watched by football experts and coaches without their being able to decipher the course taken by the ball until the line formation is seen trading down the field clear of all opponents. The play is original with the Syracuse mentor, O'Neill. It was used with deadly effect last year against the St. Louis team at the close of the season."

Fight Promoters Insure Star Boxer

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 5.—Promoters of the Freddie Welsh-Charlie White fight, scheduled for November 8, have insured White for $10,000 against death or injuries before that date.

Tom Andrews and his associates did not consider it likely that anything would happen to Welsh in his bout with Al Wolgast in New York, so did not insure him, but they have been paying a considerable amount of attention to what White has been doing of late.

The recent accident to the Chicago scrapper, when his automobile, in which he was driving to West Baden, turned turtle, caused the promoters to act.

Zbyszko Will Time in Mat Bout Tonight

Waldek Zbyszko, the winner of the Paris, Rio Janeiro and Buenos Ayres wrestling tournaments and the championship of Champion Frank Gotch, will be the timekeeper in the match between Trubetzkoi-Jack Butler and Peter Dimmitt, at the Orpheum this evening. The winner will meet George Bothner later for the world's welterweight championship.

ANDOVER, Nov. 5.—The Phillips Andover soccer football team opened its season by defeating the Harvard freshmen by the score of 3 to 0 on the local school field.

Robinson, Davidson and Young excelled for Andover, while for the Harvard freshmen Colt and Norris were the stars. Goals were made by Crimm (2) and Gamble.

TIGER ADVANCE SQUAD ARRIVES TOMORROW

PRINCETON, Nov. 5.—Strenuous work is over for the Tigers and today will witness only a light signal drill, while the greater part of tomorrow will be spent in traveling.

There will be drill for the backs and punters in the Harvard Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

For three hours yesterday the players were sent up and down the Stadium gridiron. For an hour the first and second teams were lined up against each other, and kick after kick was sent off by Driggs and Law. The ends covered the punts in splendid fashion, and it was a tossup between the two pairs, Brown and Auchterlonie and Bigbie and Shea.

It was regarded early in the session that the first pair had a cinch on the first summons, but the two that will receive the first call on Saturday are impossible to pick. The receivers handled the kicks cleanly. Ames, Dickerman, Glick and Tibbott all had a chance to practice receiving.

Six of the backs and one centre leave for Boston today, where they will participate in the Stadium tomorrow afternoon. The rest of the squad will leave tomorrow morning. The men who will be taken are Driggs, Glick, Law, Ames, Tibbott, Dickerman and Gemberl.

To Fine Jennings for Talking Too Much

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Disciplining Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit team, for talking too much will be one of the matters discussed by American League club owners today when they convene in their annual business meeting here.

Jennings' offense consists of betraying Connie Mack's first move to shake up the Philadelphia Athletics by asking waivers on Reindeer Plank and Coombs. Absolute secrecy is supposed to surround the asking of waivers until the club which asks for them is ready to make that fact known.

A fine heavy enough to make Jennings behave in future is part of the probable penalty.

Helen Cassidy Elected.

Miss Helen Cassidy, '15, has been elected captain of the Lexington high school girls' hockey eleven. Challenges for games have been issued to both Arlington and Newton Highs.

Worcester College Game Called Off

WORCESTER, Nov. 5.—The postponed Holy Cross-Worcester Tech game has been indefinitely called off on account of a disagreement.

This will be the first breach of athletic relations of the two colleges in many years and much regret is expressed by those who in the past have been greatly interested in the annual battle.

In anticipation of the Carlisle game, Coach Luke Kelly of Holy Cross instructed the team in some new formations.

McCabe for the first time since the U. A. C. game in which he wrenched his shoulder appeared in a suit.

Coach Bart Sullivan had his cross-country squad out yesterday and drilled them over the four and a half-mile course in preparation for the M. I. T. cross-country meet tomorrow.

The H. C. team will be composed mostly of new men, owing to the absence of the veterans Higgins, the champion half-miler, and Dunphy.

Why Cadum Is Good for Skin Diseases

The important thing in treating many skin diseases is to keep water away from the inflamed parts and make the covering as air tight as possible. This, according to a very distinguished New York physician, seems to kill the germ and set up the healing process quickly. Cadum, the well-known skin remedy, supplies that kind of a covering and keeps out the air. This covering consists of petrolatum and white wax, which Cadum contains. Two other ingredients of Cadum are zinc oxide, which dries up the water that comes from the sores, and oil of cade, which is one of the oldest and best known remedies for Eczema. Physicians everywhere employ oil of cade more often, perhaps, than any other one thing in treating Eczema. Cadum costs 10c for a trial box, while the 25c box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size.

MAHAN PROVES A SECOND BRICKLEY IN PUNTING PRACTICE AT STADIUM

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

PRINCETON'S ADVANCE GUARD OF FOOTBALL PLAYERS TO ARRIVE HERE TOMORROW

MAHAN IS A SECOND BRICKLEY

Yesterday they let him go and the best he could do was to kick five field goals in six attempts against the scrub substitutes in the course of a thirty-minute scrimmage. Which, all things considered, is not the worst kind of a football performance in the world.

Mahan is going to start the game Saturday. He is back again in good condition. He might have gone in again at Michigan but Coach Haughton feared the ball would be fooled in [illegible] Mahan with a stiff, sore leg. He can now say that Captain Harry Hartley Brickley is out of it. Other best of the Tiger game. Mahan has real claims that he will get into the Yale battle, only time will tell what part of it.

MAHAN SECOND BRICKLEY.

For the present purposes it is sufficient to say that the 40,000, more or less "fans" that go out to the Stadium Saturday will see Capt. Mahan drop back for a kicking stunt when the Harvard goal is inside the thirty-five yard mark and the Tiger team assumes signs of stiffening.

So late reports have been working all day on the personal appearance of Captain Brickley, and he is now believed to have assimilated all the [illegible] good coaching stuff that [illegible] crippled [illegible] for use in the big battle.

Exeter Eleven Is Ready for Game With Worcester

Exeter has piled up 137 points this season and has kept its own slate clean. The freshman team turned back by Exeter at Lake Asquam, Portsmouth, Yale, Princeton and Harvard.

The Worcester game is not looked upon as a very hard proposition by the Exeter coaches and it is doubtful if Captain Cross and several others will play much more than enough of the game than will keep them in edge for the real work of the following Saturday against Andover.

Birds of a Feather

A Bird of Paradise

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

"THEY include some of the most beautiful of all the feathered race. The lovelliest has a bloom of purple, pure white, rich chestnut, across the breast a band of golden green, the head pale gold. Most exquisite of all are the long, rich drooping plumes that spring from the body and dress it all in yellow and pale, gilded brown."

This is the bird of paradise! the palpitant, living creature clothed in beauty, made for warm, soft climes and flowery places. We see her—glimpses of her in the city world, faithful copy of the bird only in her silken splendor of plumage and gold, and perhaps like its name to some worshipper.

Birds of only a FEATHER! For her heart is not the timid thing that pulses under the bird's "bloom" of purple. Sometimes it's as hard, surely, as a dried little green apple, for she wears the dead, pitiful paradise bird in her hair or hat, made for the jungles and ordorous opens, but swinging the soft gold of his dead adorning at the opera, in the muddy streets, on a thoughtless woman's dressing table, glass beads where his bright eyes were, his kind growing fewer and more few in the islands in the South Sea.

So you see her heart is not "of a feather." She is hothouse grown, and the bird DIES in captivity. Her network of comings and goings is laid out in a town, and the bird keeps to no path even in the trackless air.

Just in a picture, just for play, just for a minute of make-believe, let's pretend that the exquisite little bird of the Papuan Islands hovered a breath on a fine lady's finger to show you how like his plumage is to hers—all purple and fine gold.

CHAPTER XV—(Continued)

"THEN Master Vic—he was only a corporal then—appeared on the scene and pitched the man out. Of course I was awfully grateful, and I fell in love with him on the spot. I need not say," she explained hurriedly, "that our acquaintance had to be carried on clandestinely. Our positions were so different. Then his regiment was ordered away. He was quite broken-hearted, poor fellow!"

She leaned over, kissed the cheek Victor had kissed, and scampered on deck.

The moment the intruder had gone Leslie sprang to the door and dressed with frantic haste. Since he was to remain in Marseilles, her desire was to leave it at once. She vigorously washed the spot on her cheek which the woman had kissed. At that moment she hated them both for traitors. Her trunks were already packed, and Oswald entering was pleasantly surprised to find her ready to land. They would be in time to catch the Rapide to Paris.

"Sorry Steele isn't coming by this train," he remarked as they drove toward the station. "He is staying for the night train because it's cheaper, I suppose. Jolly hard lines that he has only his pay to live on. That's what I say—what's the use of giving commissions to rankers. The best thing he could do would be to marry a rich woman—what? Perhaps the Merry Widow or the Queen of Diamonds, as she prefers to be called." He chuckled and drew a cigar from his case.

"What do you say to staying two or three days in Paris?" he asked tentatively. "I'll buy you some frills in the Rue de la Paix if you like—eigar"

Leslie divined a twinge of conscience over the flirtation with Jenny Melas. She smiled.

"That's very nice of you, Oswald, but I'd rather go straight on home."

So Leslie waved good-bye to her husband at the Gare du Nord and came back to England alone.

LESLIE HAS A BRAND NEW IDEA IN LONDON

Not at Charing Cross she did not at once come over to the platform where the trains start for Kent. "Get me a taxi, Robert," she said to the waiting footman. "I shall lunch in town and come down by the 5 o'clock train. Look for the luggage. There are six trunks in the front of the train. Lincoln's Inn Fields," she added to the driver as she stepped into the cab. "I'll tell you when to stop."

She was glad that Oswald had elected to stay behind or she must have waited still some days before setting her mind at rest on the question of her relationship with Victor Steele. She had felt these last few weeks that she must hear definitely from a lawyer who could speak with knowledge that that contract was not valid. Of course, it was ridiculous to doubt it—still she must have positive assurance.

The driver slowed up outside the London Opera House and looked at her interrogatively. "Stop at the first solicitor's you come to," she shouted through the speaking tube.

The office which was thus selected at random she saw from the name painted in white letters on a black board to be that of Messrs. Pounce & Liggers. Entering the clerk's office she asked to see one of the partners.

"What name, madam?" queried the youth, eyeing her with mingled awe and suspicion.

"Name? Oh—er—er—er! Mrs. Smith—Mrs. Oswald Smith. I simply want advice on a matter of law."

The youth returned and ushered her into the presence of Mr. Liggers. She took no note whatever of his personal appearance, but began at once in a steady voice. "I want to consult you about a point of some importance to a member of my family. She was married at the age of eighteen without her guardian's consent—by license.

"In the license and the certificate of marriage her age was falsely given as twenty-one in order to get over the absence of the guardian's consent. Please tell me positively—does not that false statement void the marriage?"

She looked the lawyer full in the face.

He laughed. "Most certainly not. The marriage, if that is all that is wrong about it, is absolutely valid."

CHAPTER XVI.

VICTOR STEELE journeyed slowly northward in the wake of his late fellow passengers. He stopped at Avignon and spent a pensive hour on the historic bridge gazing at the distant Cevennes; he tried to enjoy himself at busy Lyons; and rambled through the glorious forest of Fontainebleau with the delight born of long exile in a treeless land. As to many widely travelled British soldiers, Europe was a strange land to him. Gothic cathedrals and feudal castles were less familiar than mosques and hill forts.

He spent three days in Paris, and liked it so well that he thought it might be a good place to settle in when he retired from the service. He tried to forecast his state of mind twenty or twenty-five years hence.

He met Varney in evening dress, carrying a cane after the French fashion, and chewing the end of a cigar rather than smoking it.

A shadow of displeasure crossed Victor's face. He glanced quickly around, expecting to see Leslie. Varney's words soon reassured him.

"Have you seen anything of Mrs. Melas since you have been here?" he asked abruptly.

"No, I haven't," replied Varney emphatically and sulkily. He faced his companion, looking at him anxiously. "I want you to tell me straight out—do you think I made myself at all conspicuous by my attentions to that woman?"

Victor laughed. "My dear chap, it was obvious to everyone that you paid more attention to her than any one on board—except, of course, your wife."

THE FORTUNES OF FANNY

Fanny Goes to a Show with Hermann and Stella and Wishes She Hadn't

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER II.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

THE evening at the "show" was an disagreeable as Fanny Brodeau had feared it would be. She had previously gone to the theatre with her grandmother and had attended various vaudeville performances of which the careful matron had approved, accompanied by acquaintances of her choosing. It was a new experience, however, to be in public with persons like Stella Jacobs and her brother.

Moreover the place of amusement selected by them was one which Fanny had never entered before. It was a music-hall of a cheap and gaudy stamp. Hermann conducted the two girls to a gallery running around the second story of the hall and seating them at a small table, then called for a glass of beer for himself and asked his companions what they would have.

"I don't want anything," Fanny returned, while Stella promptly said that she too would take beer.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Hermann in reply to Fanny's declination. "If you don't like beer, have a soft drink."

Fanny colored with embarrassment. "But I don't want it," she insisted.

"Bring this lady a ginger beer," Hermann ordered, majestically. "You see," he explained to her after the waiter hurried off to get the three beverages, "at a place like this you're supposed to drink something. It'd look as if you was stuck up if you didn't."

He laughed, and Fanny tried to smile. After all, she told herself, the fellow meant well. It was not his fault that he was coarse and common. As he was trying to give her pleasure, it was her duty to seem appreciative.

Yet when "the drinks" were brought she did not touch hers for some moments. Her eyes were fastened on the stage, where a very short-skirted and decolleted young woman was shrieking a musical atrocity. The orchestra made such a noise that at first the words did not reach her comprehension. When they did she caught her breath and glanced at Stella, but Miss Jacobs was laughing so heartily that she thought she herself must have been mistaken in her interpretation of the refrain in which many of the spectators joined.

To hide her embarrassment, she took a sip of the over-sweet ginger ale and tried to appear as if she liked it. When she looked at the stage again, the soloist had begun another verse of the song and the orchestra was playing more softly that the listeners might not lose the words. They were borne with painful distinctness to the ears of the unsophisticated girl in the gallery. She gasped as the men and women near her, including her two companions, took up the refrain at the end of the verse and sang the coarse words lustily and merrily.

FANNY BEGS TO LEAVE THE MUSIC HALL

"Oh," she whispered to Stella under cover of the roars of laughter following the song, "what kind of a place is this? Do let's go home!"

"Goosie!" exclaimed Stella. "There's no harm in being here. The song's funny, that all I declare," she murmured to her brother. "If Fanny ain't shocked by that song!"

Hermann laughed, then looked at Fanny keenly. Her eyes were full of tears and she was biting her lips to keep them from trembling. With an effort she met his gaze.

"May I go home, please?" she pleaded in a low voice.

"See here, Sis!" Jacobs said, turning to his sister, "if the kid don't like this show she don't have to stay, see? Come along home."

It was plain that Stella broke into indignant protest. Hermann Jacobs had his faults. At heart, beneath all his rudeness, he was kindly; moreover, he was not averse to making a favorable impression upon as pretty and gentle a girl as Fanny Heddon. He had seen her often, for he and she lived on the same block, but beyond a nod of recognition or a casual "good day" he had never had the opportunity to talk with her. She had held herself aloof and he had resented this. Now as he studied her he became convinced that her grandmother had been too strict with her.

"I guess the old lady kind o' keeps things close," he mused. "Any way, she's a good-looker, and I don't guess to set her against me the first go off. I never have to go with her."

So he insisted that his sister do his bidding and leave the music hall with him and his companion. Yet he could not silence her remonstrance as the trio walked home together.

"If you was going to pick up such a fuss just over a funny song," Stella upbraided Fanny, "you'd better not of gone at all."

"I told you I did not want to go," Fanny reminded her, indignantly. "I was tired and unhappy and I told you I'd better stay at home—but you wouldn't hear of it."

"Well, anyway, when you did go you needn't of spoiled the event for Hermann and me," retorted Stella.

"I say it was a fair show," Hermann said fairly.

"Aw, shut up, Stel!" commanded the man. "I guess I coughed up for this show and I guess that if I don't kick at comin' away without gettin' my money's worth you ain't got no call to, neither."

Later, as he said good night to Fanny at the door of his mother's little parlor, he patted her shoulder reassuringly.

"Don't you mind Stell," he advised. "She's got a devil of a temper, but I'll see that she don't bother you."

HE TELLS HER NO ONE SHALL "BOSS" HER

Then as the girl made no reply he knit his head nearer her ear and lowered his voice so that Mrs. Jacobs, making up the bed on the parlor couch, should not hear him.

"Remember, Fanny," he insisted, "that I won't see you bossed by her or nobody else. Good night, sissie—and sweet dreams."

Fanny recoiled as she smelt the cheap perfume on his oiled hair and felt the pressure of his heavy hand on her shoulder. She longed to cry out against her rejection of his advances, but her courage was quivering. Instead, she turned from him and hurried into the little parlor, closing the door behind her.

Lying awake that night, she relived the events of the past evening with a shudder. She would leave here next week, she had made up her mind this kind of thing. She simply could not!

It's just as good for all other kinds of work, too. It makes each day's work easy and pleasant and gives you time for rest and pleasure.

HEINZE DIES, FORTUNE LOST IN LAW FIGHTS

PICTURESQUE CAREER OF F. AUGUSTUS HEINZE

Left college to become a mining engineer at $150 a month.

Horsewed $5,000 when twenty-two, and with partner bought mine that netted him $500,000 annually for years.

Bested the Standard Oil Company, become multi-millionaire before thirty-five.

Won a verdict of $10,000,000 from the Amalgamated Copper Company.

Won the Minnie Healey mine, worth $10,000,000.

Clashed often with Thomas W. Lawson. Has been in frequent litigation often in Boston courts.

Married in 1910 to Bernice Hersey, the vampire in "A Fool there was." Sued for breach of promise by Mrs. Lillian H. French of Butte.

Divorced after stormy matrimonial career, forgiven by dying wife.

Boston financiers displayed much interest today in the dispatches from Saratoga, telling of the sudden death there of F. Augustus Heinze, onetime copper kings, who in forty-two days won and lost many millions in a meteoric career in mines and stocks.

Believing he could smelt copper cheaper than others, Heinze, when in the twenties, managed to get sufficient capital together to acquire control of a small mine at Butte, and built a modern smelter, both of which later became a great success.

Heinze then undertook to follow out the idea that a mine owner could follow a metal lead, even if it cross into the property of another. As a consequence he started litigation, many of which attracted the attention of the business and legal world. Many Boston-owned copper properties were involved and Heinze was frequently seen in Boston courts.

MEETS WITH REVERSES.

His fortune met with reverses and built up the New York stock organization commanded Heinze and his brothers, but banking house connection compelled Heinze to resign from the Mercantile National Bank presidency. Heinze was arrested, charged with overcertifying checks in settling his brother's affairs. Heinze was acquitted, but was also comparatively penniless. He then went back to Butte.

His most recent appearance was as defendant in a suit brought by his one time wife to recover alimony, which with which Heinze bought his way into the Mercantile National Bank. The judgment for more than a million dollars went against Heinze.

RECONCILED TO WIFE.

In 1910 Heinze married Bernice Goodwin Henderson, an actress. Only two years Mr. Heinze was given an interlocutory decree of divorce.

When the wife was about to die, she told the doctors she wanted to see her husband. Just before her death in a hospital in Vienna, she said to him, "Oh, Fritz, I want that divorce set aside. Then it all ripped out for our boy's sake."

Her lawyer after her death began proceedings to have the divorce set aside.

TAFT TELLS OF MOLASSES AND POLITICAL FLY

Former President Taft, with his chuckle, smile and fund of stories, will give another lecture before Harvard Law School students at Ames Hall tomorrow. He hundred laughed and applauded at his first lecture.

"Mr. Roosevelt was trying to dissuade 'Tim' Campbell from urging the passage of a certain bill," said Mr. Taft.

"Well, what's the matter with it?" asked Tim, 'its constitutional,' answered Mr. Roosevelt. 'Oh, Mr. Roosevelt,' said Tim, 'what's the Constitution between friends?'

"I think Mr. Roosevelt might agree with Tim now," he said with a chuckle.

"One of the great dangers of the times is the legislative granted authority for its sole-getting quality—molasses to catch political flies.

"I've known a good many Presidents. Henry Watterson said 'she knew all but the first five.' I wanted to ask him what he had against the first five.

Mr. Taft told of the impression it made on him when he first heard opposition Congressman speak of his use of the veto as a usurpation of the royal prerogative to defeat the will of the people. "I had visions of the fate of Charles I, when I first heard those now trite words, but I have since learned that Presidents suffer opposition Congressmen are all alike."

Harvard Law School must unquestionably be given first place among the law schools of the world. However, it has to pay some practical personal experience and possibly some special fitness based upon the reverence manifested by former Presidents.

I think the President's term should be seven years and that he should be ineligible thereafter.

"I don't know that I think there is anything personal in this. I think I should be content with keeping the Constitution as it is, rather than risk the danger of general modification in an age of iconoclasts."

"I shall file a bill for an appropriation of $5,000,000 for such a building as soon as the term opens on the first Monday in December. I wanted to last term, but the progress was too rapid to introduce it.

"I am grateful for the flattering vote given me by the voters of the Twelfth District. It was the largest plurality in the history of the district. I shall do my best every ounce of my energy for the best interests of Boston."

O'HEARN FINDS FIRE DANGER IN AUCTION ROOMS

Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn today turned his attention to the auction rooms throughout the city with a view to safeguarding them to the utmost in time of fire. He started a most rigid investigation, followed by a number of arrests.

He sent several inspectors to Leonard's auction rooms on Brookline street. A final decision will be made tomorrow on the plans following a report from the investigators.

Commissioner O'Hearn said:

"A preliminary investigation into a great number of auction rooms throughout the city shows a great deal of carelessness in the way the doorways are not wide enough. In some instances the aisleways are in the basements. In case of fire or lockout, if fire should start [illegible] it would be impossible."

CLOSE ROXBURY HALL.

Hibernian Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury, which was ordered a few days ago to provide additional means of egress having been closed by the building commissioner, was today ordered closed. The order goes into effect tonight.

Laborers are rushing to complete the $200,000 addition building to the Boston City City Club, Somerset street and Ashburton place, for Wednesday. The dedication exercises, to be marked by an elaborate program, are to be held in the Hall Commissioner O'Hearn declares must not be used.

Clerk Secretary A. L. Winship said:

"The club stands willing and eager to comply with any recommendation for changes that Commissioner O'Hearn may make. It is the club's hope and aim to live up to all laws to the letter. We do not wish to have any controversy with the building department. We do not want to be been hanging fire for some weeks, but as a matter of fact the club has not yet asked for a hall license. It is planned to hold the dedication exercises in the assembly hall."

Commissioner O'Hearn replies:

"No amount of alterations could make the assembly hall safe for use as prescribed by the law. The only way would be to build an annex to make the assembly hall distinct from the rest of the building, but there is no land available for an annex. The only other way would be to change the present law or to get a court ruling that the assembly hall is safe.

"We don't care in the least how unpleasant it may be, and it forces me to insist that that and other halls be closed until all the requirements are complied with."

HOPES FOR TRUCE.

Louis C. Newhall, of the firm of Newhall & Blevins, No. 9 Park street, who designed the City Club building, said:

"We do not want friction with anybody. We hope this matter will be settled amicably and that the assembly hall is not a theatre in any sense of the term. If it is so held the whole thing will be illegal. We don't ever and I couldn't estimate the cost of such an undertaking. We planned the building, and it was erected under a permit from the building department. We got no permit for any new plans. This turn of events taken us unawares."

Inspector Commissioner O'Hearn is as firm as Gibraltar. He doesn't propose to be swerved from the law by as much as a hair's breadth. He is firm to that.

What's the sense in having building laws or any other laws if you don't live up to them? My duty is plain, it is to enforce the law and enforce it I shall while I am commissioner. It may upset conditions that existed in the office before it came, and it may be a hardship to many, but it is my duty.

TO PROTECT LIFE.

"The assembly hall at the new City Club is the same as if I allowed a man to buy a four-story building on Washington street, permitted it to run picture on the top floor, a restaurant on the third, another firm on the second floor and a store on the street floor. Suppose a fire broke out. How about the audience on the roofloor?

"How about a panic or a fire in the City Club's assembly hall? Is it adequate exits? It is only to protect the members, their wives and children that such laws are enforced and that I wish to live up to them."

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

There seems to be no lack of interest in the automobile show which is being held in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza. The attendance yesterday was most gratifying and the entertainment in more ways than one. Numerically it was the heaviest of the week and in a business way the most prosperous, several of the exhibitors coming in touch with real live prospects. The representatives of the various exhibitors from one exhibit to another. In this way it is possible for those who appreciate the merits of electrical pleasure vehicles to get full information about the details of construction, methods of operation, economies, etc. of all the different styles.

The Grand Ballroom of the Copley-Plaza is so spacious that the many cars exhibited are well displayed, so that it is easy for visitors to view them from every vantage point. The glazing of the cars this year are unusually distinctive and attractive. This is appreciated by the public, as it is one hears the enthusiastic comments or approval.

Representatives of leading educational institutions about Boston were seen at the show during the week, so many representative business men came in with their families during the evenings.

President L. D. Gibbs of the Electric Motor Car Club, which has its headquarters in the salon in the ballroom, yesterday sent a letter to President Lisle of the Chalmers Motor Company, of Detroit, Mich., extending the freedom of the salon to any of the officers of the company who may be in town attending the reception to be accorded Theodore Pavlova at the Copley-Plaza tomorrow.

The Wilson Policies Bring Democratic Disaster

The voters of the United States on Tuesday with convincing emphasis and force expressed their condemnation of the Wilson administration and the Wilson policies.

It is no unusual thing for an administration, especially one responsible for a tariff law, to fail to hold in its second year the popular support that carried it into office. But never before has the expression of popular disapproval been so unmistakable.

The campaign culminating in Tuesday's election was fought throughout the nation on the slogan "Stand by the President." When the Democrats issued their campaign textbook they headed it "Thank God for Wilson!" Though intended to aid the election of Congressmen, the greater part of the book was given over to the President's utterances. The precise extent to which the Democratic majority in Congress has been reduced is not at this moment certain. The loss, however, as a result of this species of argument is heavy.

GOVERNOR WALSH SAVED HIMSELF FROM BEING SUBMERGED BY THE WEIGHT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S BREACHES OF PARTY FAITH BY REPUDIATING THEM AND INSISTING UPON MAKING THE APPEAL TO THE CITIZENS OF MASSACHUSETTS UPON HIS OWN MASSACHUSETTS RECORD. THAT RECORD WAS GOOD AND WAS WELL REWARDED BY HIS FELLOW CITIZENS.

But in every State where the President had his personal representatives running for office there was Democratic disaster.

In Pennsylvania he aided with a personal letter the Senatorial ambitions of A. Mitchell Palmer. Mr. Palmer's defeat is so overwhelming as to make his candidacy appear grotesque.

In Illinois the personal representative of the President, campaigning as the "original Wilson man," was Roger C. Sullivan. Sullivan is beaten by a stand-pat Republican.

In Connecticut the Democratic nominee, Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, possessed in the fullest degree the President's support, and is himself a man of great personal force and popularity. Governor Baldwin goes down with the national leader he blindly followed.

In the New York Senatorial contest Ambassador Gerard, a Wilson appointee, received the fullest administration support. High personal character, a magnificent record in his difficult post at Berlin availed him nothing. He went down to defeat on the one single issue of his affiliation with the national administration.

The New York contest for the governorship followed the rule established over the country. In point of personal fitness for the office there was little choice between the candidates. Each has been an admirable public servant in the office he holds today. But the voters clearly swept away all the confusing issues involved and voted down Governor Glynn in token of disapproval of his party as now nationally led.

In November, 1912, the voters of the United States elected Woodrow Wilson President upon a platform which appealed to them, and which they took seriously. The nominee, it later appeared, did not.

In November, 1914, they were asked to express their approval of the way in which that platform had been given effect.

They remembered that that platform promised a tariff revision that would "not injure nor destroy legitimate industry."

BUT THE TARIFF LAW ENACTED STRUCK DOWN AMERICAN INDUSTRY, FAILED TO PRODUCE NEEDED REVENUE, AND OPENED NO NEW MARKETS FOR OUR TRADE.

The platform favored "the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade passing through the Panama Canal."

BUT THE PRESIDENT FORCED CONGRESS TO LEVY A TAX ON OUR SHIPS EQUAL TO THAT ON BRITISH OR OTHER FOREIGN SHIPS.

The platform promised protection for American citizens abroad.

The administration elected on that platform HAS FAILED TO PROTECT AMERICANS ANYWHERE, AND FLATLY REFUSED TO PROTECT THEM IN MEXICO, WHERE AMERICAN CITIZENS HAVE BEEN ROBBED AND MURDERED BY HUNDREDS.

The platform promised an adequate navy. The Democratic party, dominated from the White House, HAS STARVED THE NAVY TO THE POINT OF DANGEROUS WEAKNESS.

The platform promised to foster our merchant marine. THE PRESIDENT, BY EXECUTIVE ORDER, PROHIBITED THE ENFORCEMENT OF THAT PART OF THE TARIFF LAW WHICH, BY GRANTING PREFERENTIAL DUTIES TO IMPORTS IN AMERICAN BOTTOMS, STROVE TO GIVE EFFECT TO THIS PLEDGE.

But enough. The Democratic party went to the people asking them to vote candidates into office as an evidence of approval of the Wilson administration. THE VOTERS LOOKED UP THE RECORD. THEY FOUND IT ONE OF FLAT AND BRAZEN VIOLATION OF PLATFORM PLEDGES.

In just and proper resentment they have refused the vote of confidence asked, and the more closely the candidate was identified with the Administration of Broken Pledges the more unmistakable has been his defeat.

War's Menace to Royalty

How much of new republicanism is likely to come to Europe out of this war?

France is, of course, already a republic. Her soldiers suffering and dying in the field; her civilians—mostly women—sorrowing and suffering at home, will have only elected officials to hold responsible for their place in the murderous madness.

Holding, as the whole nation does, that the war was forced upon them by the most prominent champion of the "divine right of kings" in all Europe, the French will not be swerved from their republicanism by the shock of war.

England, practically a republic already, in many respects more democratic than the United States, is in much the same position as France, as, too, is Belgium.

Yet it will be amazing if in both of these countries secret diplomacy, at least—a dangerous relic of personal and royal government that has outlived royalty itself—shall not be amended, if not abolished.

Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany are at war because of the power and the policies of their reigning monarchs. This fact is not gainsaid by the equally unquestioned truth that at the moment the heart of the whole German people is in the war. But should the issue prove unfavorable or the suffering unbearable, even among the loyal Germans there may be revolt against the power that led on to disaster.

It is necessarily in these three empires that the course of representative government and republican institutions must be advanced by war, if it is to be advanced at all. People think bitterly and radically in the moments following a war. The Third Empire in France gave way to the Republic and narrowly escaped the Commune as the fruit of the people's reaction against dominant militarism. Before complete calm settles again over Europe, forces which will dwarf even the Kaiser's famous howitzers will be loosed, and not merely the map but the political methods of that continent will be radically changed.

GLYNN'S DEBT TO THE PRESIDENT

If the New York Democrats carry the State next Tuesday, they may thank Woodrow Wilson.

Letters from American Readers

KEEP UP PROSPERITY TALK

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I think your editorial, "Forces of Prosperity Rapidly Mobilizing," the best encouragement we have seen in any journal for months past. Statements like these are worth their weight in gold, and coming through your great paper will be a great boon to trade, as you reach so many people in all walks of life. Keep up your good work and other papers will follow, bringing us within the next few months an era of genuine prosperity.

Lynn. F. A. LAVENDER.

"SHOP EARLY"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—As a constant reader of your paper I would like to ask, when you make your usual "Do your Christmas shopping early" appeal to the public, that you also mention the small stores, such as butchers and grocers. These people work early and late every day in the year, not only Christmas time, and there is never an appeal made for them.

Why Are Some Husbands Like This—

THE WAY IT SEEMS

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

THOUGH chaos and confusion
Upon the earth I see,
Yet still they seem illusion
Unto the soul of me.
Though race with race is striving
And conflicts do not cease,
I feel that right is thriving—
I hear the voice of Peace.

I know the wrongs existing
And growing hour by hour.
And yet my faith, persisting,
Sees justice high in power;
I hear the voice of Reason
Enumerating ills;
But doubt of God seems treason,
And trust my bosom thrills.

Though nation wars with nation,
And men in darkness grope,
A curious exaltation
Gives pinions to my hope.
Though sorrows and disasters
Descend upon our sphere,
My faith in wisdom masters
All sentiments of fear.

Along this world benighted
Where clouds and shadows roll,
One narrow path is lighted
For each immortal soul.
The path of Love's endeavor,
To show the God within,
And who walks there will never
Be slave of fear or sin.

Mine is the mind of woman,
No logic in its store;
But, ah! my heart is human
And love is at its core.
The earth is God's expansion,
And love is all it needs,
And this is faith's confession
Of what it lacks in creeds.

"Take it away from me, if I had my life to live it over again, I would never be born. The only thing to think about is money, and what's the good of it, anyway? If you save it you're a miser; if you spend it you're a spendthrift; if you steal it you're a thief; if you give it up you're a sucker."

All of which is a little philosophy which is continued at length in the City Life section of next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.
